CURRENT NOTES

Ninety-nine Years After

The British Medical Association, which celebrates its ninety-ninth birthday next month, and its centenary next year, had its origin at Worcester General Infirmary. At that pioneer meeting, held on July 19th, 1832, there presided Charles Hastings, the man to whose initiative the Association owes its birth. Fifty medical men (there were no women doctors in those days) attended, including most of those living in Worcester and the neighbouring towns. Some of the others came from places as far away as Birmingham, Warwick, Cheltenham, Oxford, Bath, and Bristol. It must be remembered that railway travelling was then in its infancy, while the penny post and telegraph were things of the distant future. The growth of the new body was slow and steady. Its first Branch, the East Anglian, was formed in 1835. In 1857 the Association, which was already publishing a weekly paper, rechristened it British Medical Journal, which went each week to 3,000 readers. The Association now extends throughout the Empire, is organized in 98 Branches and 250 Divisions, its membership is over 35,000, and the circulation of its Journal over 39,000 copies weekly.

British Medical Association House: Court of Honour.

Help to Individual Members

The Association is in possession of a very large amount of information on all matters affecting medical practitioners in their professional lives. Thus it is often able to help its members individually in difficulties of a professional nature, and doing so constitutes a considerable part of its daily work. The Medical Department alone has some 5,000 files dealing with all branches of medical activity. The Intelligence Department, besides assisting in the collecting and recording of information, has a supply of press cuttings on matters concerning the profession, and this information, together with that arising in the course of correspondence and otherwise, is so far as possible filed in such a way as to be readily available for the assistance of members through the medium of the Medical and Editorial Departments. Inquiries by members, whether through the honorary secretaries of Divisions or Branches or otherwise, on any matter of doubt or difficulty affecting them in their professional capacity, are welcomed. Such inquiries should be addressed to the Medical Secretary, B.M.A. House, Tavistock Square, W.C.1. Expert opinion on income tax questions affecting members of the profession is published in the British Medical Journal. The solicitors of the Association are consulted when legal matters arise which affect the general interests of the profession.

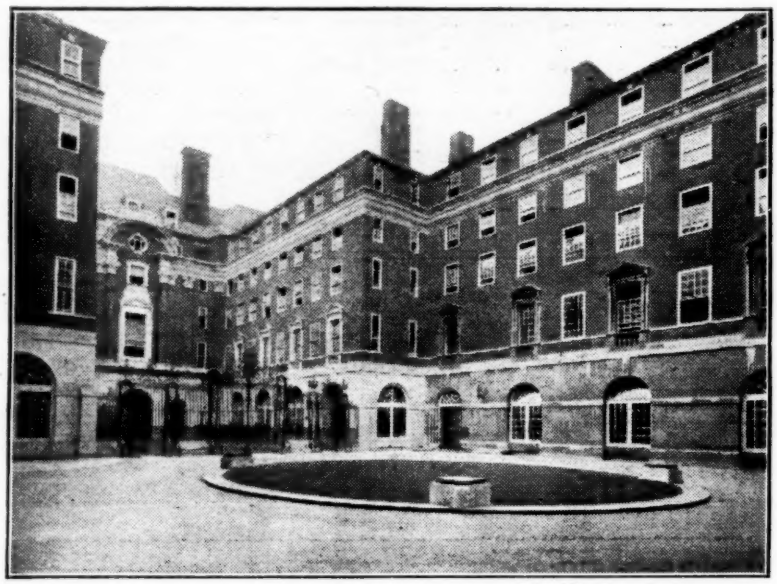
Social Life and the Association

A large number of the Divisions and Branches of the Association now make their meetings as sociable as possible—for example, by the members taking tea together before the meetings. Many have, in addition, definite social functions, including dinners, suppers, receptions, dances, garden parties, or sports fixtures. There are always many social events in connexion with the Annual Meetings of the Association. As regards sports, there will be played off at the Annual Meeting of the Association at Eastbourne, next month, the following golf competitions: The Notts Ladies' Challenge Cup (Wednesday, July 22nd); the Ulster and Childe Cups (Thursday, July 23rd); and the final round for the Treasurer's Cup (Friday, July 24th). In addition, there are frequently tennis and other sports fixtures in connexion with the meetings.

The Library of the Association

The Library now contains over 30,000 volumes, including books on all branches of medicine, and a collection of Thèses de Paris (1892–1930) and Thèses de Lyon (1894–1919) believed to be unique in this country. The aim is to provide a really practical up-to-date service, and thus the facilities offered are being continually extended as the demand increases. Every important medical book in the English language is added on publication, as well as many foreign books, and most of the leading medical periodicals of the world are filed. Lists of books added to the Library are published periodically in the Supplement to the British Medical Journal. In the Reading Room separate tables are provided, so that readers may work in quiet and comfort. Reference copies of standard textbooks are always available. The Librarian and Assistant Librarian are in attendance, and are glad to help members in the selection or location of modern books, or to look up references on any medical subject. The Library is open from 10 a.m. to 6.30 p.m. (Saturdays till 1 o'clock).



BRITISH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION HOUSE: FORECOURT AND COURT OF HONOUR.

The Circulating Library

In addition to the facilities whereby members can consult books, etc., in the Library, books in all branches of medicine and the allied sciences can be obtained on loan by members, free of charge (other than any postage). Volumes may ordinarily be retained for twenty-eight days (if a book is in urgent demand by other members the Librarian has power to recall it after fourteen days).

A copy of the Library Regulations will be forwarded to members on application. All communications relating to the Library should be addressed to the Librarian, B.M.A. House, Tavistock Square, W.C.1.

Newly Qualified Doctors

The new edition of the Association's Handbook for Recently Qualified Medical Practitioners is expected to be issued within the next fortnight. First published in 1923, the book has been in such demand that a second, and now a third, edition have become necessary. The new (1931) edition contains authoritative information, such as is not available in any other single publication, about many matters affecting medical practitioners. Though primarily issued by the Association to meet the needs of newly qualified members of the profession, and to give information and advice on matters known to be often the subject of doubt or difficulty to those who are planning their careers, the new edition, even more than its predecessors, should be found of assistance by members of the profession of whatsoever seniority. It will give, inter alia, information as to the main careers open to members of the profession; national health insurance; practical aspects of medical work (especially legal and ethical aspects; registration and privileges of practitioners; the facilities throughout the British Isles for post-graduate study; the special diplomas available for "visiting" post-graduates; specialization; fellowships, scholarships, studentships, prizes, and research grants; dangerous drugs regulations; individual medical defence; and medical insurance. Members of the Association resident in the British Isles can obtain the book on loan from the Circulating Library, B.M.A. House, Tavistock Square, W.C.1, on application to the Librarian. Persons wishing to buy the book (price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 9d.) can obtain it by applying to the Financial Secretary and Business Manager, at the House.

Medical Importance of Teeth

The Association has decided to offer prizes for essays by senior students and newly qualified practitioners on "How is the condition of the teeth of patients of special importance in the work of medical practitioners?" For this competition the medical schools throughout the Empire have been grouped as on previous occasions—namely:

GROUP 1.—Guy's Hospital; London Hospital; St. Bartholomew's; St. Thomas's Hospital.

GROUP 2.—Charing Cross Hospital; King's College Hospital; Middlesex Hospital; Royal Free Hospital (London School of Medicine for Women); St. George's Hospital; St. Mary's Hospital; University College Hospital; Westminster Hospital.

GROUP 3.—University of Birmingham; University of Bristol; University of Durham; University of Leeds; University of Liverpool; Victoria University of Manchester; University of Sheffield; Welsh National School of Medicine.

GROUP 4.—University of Aberdeen; School of Medicine of the Royal Colleges, Edinburgh; University of Edinburgh; Anderson College of Medicine, Glasgow; Queen Margaret College (School of Medicine for Women), Glasgow; St. Mungo's College, Glasgow; University of Glasgow; University of St. Andrews.

GROUP 5.—Queen's University, Belfast; University of Dublin (Trinity College); National University of Ireland (University College, Cork; University College, Dublin; University College, Galway); Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland (Schools of Surgery).

GROUP 6.—The medical schools of the Empire, other than those of the British Isles.

For each group a prize consisting of a certificate signed by the President of the Association, together with a cheque for £25, will be available. The similar prizes for the current year were won by:

Group 1.—Guy's Hospital Medical School.
Group 2.—University College Hospital Medical School.
Group 3.—University of Durham.
Group 5.—Queen's University, Belfast.
Group 6.—University of Melbourne.

Essays must be plainly written or typed on foolscap paper (one side only), and must reach the Medical Secretary, B.M.A. House, Tavistock Square, W.C.1, not later than April 15th, 1932. Each essay must be signed by a pseudonym only, and be accompanied by a signed statement that it has been the bona fide work of the competitor, and that he or she comes within the definition of those eligible to enter for the competition—namely, fourth and subsequent year students, and practitioners within one year of passing a qualifying examination—together with particulars of his or her name, pseudonym, address, medical school, and (if on Medical Register) month and year in which an examination qualifying for registration was passed.

Posts Abroad

The Head Office of the Association has at its disposal much information, received from various sources, such as may be very useful to those proposing to accept medical appointments abroad. Members are cordially invited to apply to the Medical Secretary for any information available in respect of oversea appointments in which they are specially interested.

The Association's Annual Handbook

There are still available a few copies of the Annual Handbook of the Association for 1930–31. Primarily intended as a reference book for honorary secretaries of Divisions and Branches and other workers of the Association, the Annual Handbook should prove of interest and assistance to all members. The new edition includes the decisions of the Representative Body on matters of policy (except the Hospital Policy, which is published separately); a sketch of the constitution and working of the Association, local and central; lists of members of Council and central committees, and of officers and officials, local and central; a record of some of the work of the past year; and other information about the activities of the Association. Copies can be had by members gratis and post free (while the supply lasts), on application to the Medical Secretary. For other persons the Handbook is on sale at 3s. 6d. net (post free 3s. 9d.), on application to the Financial Secretary and Business Manager.

Approved Societies and Insurance Practitioners

As a pleasing variation from the usual diatribes indulged in by the presidents at the annual meetings of friendly societies, it is gratifying to be able to quote the following extract from the address given by Mr. Herbert Titmarsh, J.P., at the annual movable conference of the Loyal Order of Ancient Shepherds (Ashton Unity), held at Helensburgh on May 25th last. He said: "What is known as the 'panel system' has received its fair share of criticism in the past. Whilst it may not be all that could be desired, I venture to suggest it is the best and only possible system that could be worked in connexion with the Insurance Acts. It should be the aim of all societies to work in close co-operation with the medical profession. From my own experience, those gentlemen are generally prepared to consider any reasonable representations made to them in any case of suspicion."

Association Notices

NOTICES OF MOTION BY DIVISIONS FOR THE ANNUAL REPRESENTATIVE MEETING, EASTBOURNE, 1931

FEES FOR CERTIFICATES UNDER CREMATION ACT

By BRISTOL: That the recommendation contained in para. 73 of the Annual Report of Council be amended by the deletion of the words "except where the total family income does not exceed £250 per annum, when the fee should not be less than 10s. 6d."

HANDBOOK FOR QUALIFIED MEDICAL PRACTITIONERS

By BRISTOL: That (with reference to para. 42 of the Annual Report of Council) the Representative Body suggests that a Handbook for Qualified Medical Practitioners should be published annually instead of that for the newly qualified.

PROPRIETY OF COMMISSIONS FOR INTRODUCTION OF PATIENTS

By BRISTOL: That in the opinion of the Representative Body it is undesirable that the British Medical Association, or any other body or company which is wholly or partially under the control of the British Medical Association, should seek to obtain a commission from a practitioner for the introduction of a patient to any medical practitioner, whether that patient is to be attended in an institution or home, or simply as an ordinary private patient.

HEALTH SERVICES UNDER LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT, 1929

By BOURNEMOUTH: That the Representative Body regrets the slow development of the policy which was accepted by Parliament and embodied in the Local Government Act, 1929, and instructs the Council to ascertain and report on the progress being demonstrated by local authorities with regard to:

(a) The fulfilment of the clear directions of the Act for the effective co-operation of all institutions concerned with medical and surgical treatment, thus realizing a more complete unification of the health services.

(b) The extent to which under Section 13 of the Act consultative committees have been set up and wasteful competition between public and voluntary bodies avoided.

(c) The obvious intention of the Act in relation to the medical officer of health being the chief medical officer of the local authority and its various committees upon health services, including all transferred medical services under the Local Government Act, 1929.

ELECTION OF 24 MEMBERS OF COUNCIL BY GROUPED BRANCHES IN THE BRITISH ISLES

The names of the members already declared elected to the Council for the session 1931–32 in respect of the groups of Home Branches (with the exception of Group R, where a contest occurred) were published in the Supplement of May 16th (p. 191).

The following is a result of the election in Group R: of the 192 voting papers issued from the Head Office, 59 were returned; of these, 36 were in favour of Dr. John Mills, 19 in favour of Dr. William A. Moore, and 4 were spoiled. Dr. John Mills thereby becomes elected a member of the Council for 1931–32.

June 6, Sat.	Nomination papers available (on application at Head Office) for election of 12 members of Council by grouped Representatives (British Isles).
June 18, Thurs.	Meetings of constituencies must be held between this date and July 17th, to instruct Representatives.
June 27, Sat.	Publication in Supplement of Supplementary Report of Council.
July 1, Wed.	Amendments and riders for inclusion in A.R.M. agenda must be received at Head Office by this date.

ALFRED COX,
Medical Secretary

Meetings of Branches and Divisions

ABERDEEN BRANCH: CITY OF ABERDEEN DIVISION.

An ordinary meeting of the City of Aberdeen Division was held in the Hall, 29, King Street, Aberdeen, on April 14th, when Dr. R. RICHARDS was in the chair, and forty members were present.

Dr. MACKLIN (Dundee) gave a lantern lecture on "A polar expedition from the surgeon's point of view." The lecturer described his duties and experiences as a member of the Shackleton expedition during the voyage of the Endurance, and illustrated his remarks with over a hundred most artistic and picturesque slides. The hearty applause which greeted the lecturer when, on the motion of Dr. CLARK SOUTER, he was thanked for his services, showed how thoroughly appreciative the members were, and how greatly the lecture had been enjoyed.

CALCUTTA BRANCH

At a meeting of the Calcutta Branch, held on March 13th, with the president, Dr. KEDARNATH DAS, in the chair, Dr. GANAPATI PANJA read a paper on infantile eczema, based on a study of thirty cases. After discussing the etiological factors, including the influence of cow's milk, Dr. Panja went on to outline the bacteriological findings, and stressed the importance of frequent examination of the stools while the patient was in hospital. Commenting on different views expressed by authorities, Dr. Panja said that in Calcutta the disease commenced mostly in winter months, when sudden changes in temperature were not so common. Gastro-intestinal disturbances were more common in summer than in winter, but chronic dysentery or amoebiasis might be the causative factor by giving rise to constipation and irregularity of bowels. Initial seborrhoea of the scalp might be the starting-point in a few cases, but the percentage was very low in the series examined. Local remedies, though effective in many cases, required prolonged and careful application, and relapses occurred in spite of them. The exacerbations were definitely associated with the taking of cow's milk; the patients were otherwise in good general health. There were two chief clinical types—(1) seborrhoeic eczema, and (2) true infantile eczema. The prognosis was good in the seborrhoeic type, but in infantile eczema long intensive treatment was necessary. The general resistance of the patient should be stimulated, all unsuitable articles should be eliminated from the diet, and constipation should be avoided. Dr. Panja discussed in detail the general and local methods of treatment. With regard to the latter, he favoured gentian violet paint in both types of eczema, despite the fact that the staining was rather objectionable. The paper was followed by a discussion.

Major S. N. MUKHERJEE demonstrated a case of cystic kidney occurring in a patient aged 18. He said that histologically the kidney was arterio-sclerotic in type, with multiple cystic changes; the other kidney was perfectly healthy. The x-ray plates of a case of partial gastrectomy performed under local novocain and splanchnic anaesthesia were shown; the patient was the first in India to have this type of anaesthesia. In describing the method, Major Mukherjee said that a long needle was passed between the aorta and the vena cava, and the novocain solution was injected into the coeliac plexus. It was possible to continue operating for two to three hours without the slightest symptoms of shock to the patient.

GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND BRANCH: GLASGOW DIVISION

The annual meeting of the Glasgow Division was held on April 15th, when Dr. MCKAIL was in the chair and fifty members were present.

The annual report of the Executive Committee was adopted. It recorded that five ordinary meetings had been held during the year, with an average attendance of forty-four. The most important business had been the consideration of proposals for a general medical service.

The following officers were appointed for 1931-32:

Chairman, Dr. Marion Gilchrist. Vice-Chairmen, Dr. David McKail, Dr. John Henderson, and Dr. Hugh Forrest. Secretary, Dr. J. Inglis Cameron. Deputy Secretary and Treasurer, Dr. John Fleming. Representatives in Representative Body, Drs. Marion Gilchrist, J. G. McCutcheon, David Smith, A. K. Chalmers, John Henderson, Edward J. Primrose, James Forrester, and W. J. Richard. Deputy Representatives in Representative Body, Drs. James Craig, Amy Fleming, David McKail, G. S. Livingston, Ian Murray, and Thomas Russell.

Dr. J. G. MCCUTCHEON undertook to arrange a golf competition if sufficient names were forthcoming.

HERTFORDSHIRE BRANCH: BARNET DIVISION

A meeting of the Barnet Division, preceded by a dinner, was held at the Hadley Wood Golf Club on April 14th. Mr. EARDLEY HOLLAND delivered a British Medical Association Lecture on disturbances of menstruation, and showed several specimens. The lecture was of an informal, after-dinner character, and was followed by many questions and replies.

The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Eardley Holland for his interesting address.

KENT BRANCH: FOLKESTONE DIVISION

A general meeting of the Folkestone Division was held at the Royal Victoria Hospital on March 19th. The following officers were elected:

Chairman, Dr. Percy Lewis. Vice-Chairman, Dr. Dodgson. Honorary Secretary and Treasurer, Dr. A. C. Rusack. Representative in Representative Body, Dr. Gould.

A discussion took place with the local medical officer of health on various matters, and a satisfactory solution for small difficulties was reached. It was reported that the clinical meetings held during the winter were well attended and much enjoyed by the members.

METROPOLITAN COUNTIES BRANCH: SOUTH-WEST ESSEX DIVISION

A meeting of the South-West Essex Division was held, through the kindness of Dr. Jays, at Livingstone College, Leyton, on April 7th, when Dr. PHILIP was in the chair. The proposal of the Central Council with regard to the salaries of public health medical officers was considered. On the motion of Dr. PHILIP, seconded by Dr. DOWLING, the Division adopted the following resolution under its Ethical Rules:

> That, in the opinion of the South-West Essex Division, no medical practitioner should, after the date of adoption of this resolution, apply for or accept any whole-time public health appointment within the area of the Division the salary of which does not conform to the agreed Memorandum of Recommendations in regard to salaries of whole-time public health medical officers, as approved and adopted by the Representative Meeting, 1929.
> (i) That the Division expresses the opinion that domiciliary attendance should, in the best interests of the patients, be provided by private practitioners, and not by a whole-time medical officer; (ii) the adoption of this expression of opinion leaves unprejudiced the position of any medical officers at present holding whole-time appointments in which domiciliary attendance is one of the duties; and (iii) that no medical practitioner should, after the date of adoption of this resolution, apply for or accept any whole-time public health appointment within the area of the Division which involves domiciliary attendance.

These resolutions, having been carried unanimously by the members present, will henceforth be binding on members of the Division, to the exclusion of the resolution passed on December 7th, 1926.

A very interesting lecture was given by Dr. O'DONOVAN on inflamed and ulcerated legs, illustrated by numerous photographs of cases. He said that he had found from experience that the sore red legs were frequently associated with the insensitive palate and sclerotic and glove and stocking anaesthesia of the hysteric, and that, though the condition might have arisen in the first place from some abrasion or irritation, the continuance of the complaint then afforded satisfaction to the mental state of the hysteric, and so continued. Therefore the best treatment, as a rule, was complete occlusion of the affected area.

After a short discussion the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Dr. O'Donovan.

METROPOLITAN COUNTIES BRANCH: WILLESDEN DIVISION

A clinical meeting of the Willesden Division was held at the Willesden General Hospital on April 9th.

Dr. THOMAS PEARSE WILLIAMS addressed the meeting on the subject of "Some disorders of colon function." He reviewed the anatomy, and more particularly the physiology, of the large bowel in some detail. He went fully into the movements of the gut, and its gastro-ileal and gastro-colic reflexes, pointing out how derangement of these might be brought about by faulty habits and diet. Toxic absorption did occur from the colon, but not to the extent at one time thought. All the symptoms generally associated with constipation had been induced mechanically by packing the rectum with cotton-wool. Dr. Williams was very averse to feeding children on foods which left a large undigestible residue of cellulose, as was so often done with the idea of stimulating the colon.

An interesting discussion followed the lecture, and many questions were asked and answered. On the motion of Dr. WILLIAM PATERSON, seconded by Dr. M. BRISCOE, a vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Dr. Williams for his interesting address.

SOUTH WALES AND MONMOUTHSHIRE BRANCH: NORTH GLAMORGAN AND BRECKNOCK DIVISION

A meeting of the North Glamorgan and Brecknock Division was held at the New Inn, Pontypridd, on April 2nd. Dr. FREDERIC P. HEARDER gave an address on borderline cases.

In the course of his remarks Dr. Hearder pointed out the importance of diet and discipline from infancy, and advocated the encouragement of games and play-acting for children, to get them to express themselves in action, and so avoid too much fantasy and reverie as being unhealthy for the developing brain, especially so at puberty and early adolescence, with the tendency to become "highly strung," hysterical, or even to pass on to dementia praecox. Encouragement and persuasion, with firmness and avoidance of bullying, were the means advised to prevent the children becoming maladapted and joining the ranks of the psychasthenic, neurasthenic, or hysteric. Illustrative histories were given, showing the effects of environment for good or ill, especially in the home and at school. Insight, obsessions, phobias, hallucinations, with suggestion and inhibition were considered, also suicide and impulsive actions, with the question of control, and what risks should be taken in the interests of the patient, and precautions for the relatives and public.

The paper was discussed by Dr. J. MORGAN REES and R. M. HILEY.

SURREY BRANCH: GUILDFORD DIVISION

An ordinary meeting of the Guildford Division was held at the Royal Surrey County Hospital on March 5th, when Dr. BLANFORD was in the chair.

Dr. ARNOLD CHAPLIN, Harveian Librarian of the Royal College of Physicians of London, read a paper on "Some famous deathbeds in the world's history." The figures included Oliver Cromwell, William III, George II, Queen Caroline, Sir Robert Walpole, and Napoleon. Cromwell had suffered for years from malaria, and eventually died from anaemia and splenic enlargement. William III was always of a wheezy, asthmatical type, being tuberculous from early years, and anything but abstemious; he died, as was ascertained post mortem, from tuberculosis of the lung. George II died at Kensington Palace of what was proved post mortem to be rupture of the right ventricle of the heart. Queen Caroline threw her life away on account of false modesty, which prevented her from disclosing a gynaecological condition which in its inception might have been cured. It was not until the end of his life that Robert Walpole had to pay the penalty for consuming enormous quantities of meat and port wine by suffering from stone in the bladder; he died of suppression of urine. Charles James Fox died of cirrhosis of the liver, as did Addison and Sheridan. Napoleon, when at St. Helena, was supposed to be suffering from endemic hepatitis, but the post-mortem examination revealed a cancer of the pyloric end of the stomach, which was converted into an ulcerating mass, in the centre of which was a perforation admitting the little finger; this had been prevented from causing death by the adhesions between the under surface of the liver and the lesser curvature of the stomach.

YORKSHIRE BRANCH: WAKEFIELD, PONTEFRACT, AND CASTLEFORD DIVISION

A meeting of the Wakefield, Castleford, and Pontefract Division was held at the Red Lion Hotel, Pontefract, on April 9th, under the chairmanship of Mr. G. W. THOMAS. A letter was read from headquarters requesting further assistance in the inquiry into the incidence of cancer and its history after treatment, and the members were urged to give any help in their power.

Address on Infant Feeding

Professor C. W. VINING, physician to the children's department at the Leeds General Infirmary, gave an address on infant feeding. He prefaced his remarks by emphasizing the importance of those in general practice taking an active interest in the care and feeding of normal children, and pointed out that the development of the welfare centres all over the country was in a large measure due to the disinclination of general practitioners in the past to undertake the care of children who could be called "well." Infant feeding was essentially preventive medicine, and a branch which was well within the range of the family doctor's work.

Referring to breast-feeding, Dr. Vining said that in his experience the majority of the troubles which developed were due to deficiency in the milk, and gave it as his opinion that breast milk rarely caused digestive disorder, and that overfeeding was most unlikely if the infant was fed not more frequently than six times in the twenty-four hours. Supplemental feeding was often necessary, and should be carried out following the feed at the breast, and not in the form of alternative feeds. In dealing with artificial feeding he again stressed the point that underfeeding was a great deal more frequent than overfeeding, and insisted that the essential factor making for success was the understanding of quantities and the provision of sufficient food. Babies did well on all kinds of different foods, but only when the food was adequate. As a method of choice he suggested the addition of one of the sugars to fresh milk, water being added to give the infant sufficient for his needs in the twenty-four hours. One and three-quarters to two ounces of milk, with two-thirds to one drachm of sugar for each pound the baby weighed, with sufficient water to give a total of approximately 2½ to 3½ ounces of fluid per pound, were mentioned as minimum daily requirements for normal infants, and emphasis was laid on the point that "well" babies below their expected weights should receive more. The speaker criticized the method of feeding with so-called humanized milk, pointing out the risk of underfeeding with protein by so doing and overfeeding with fat. He had seen many children who had been thoroughly upset by this method of feeding, not infrequently carried out by the mother from directions received through the post from people who professed to be able to direct the feeding of an infant whom they had never seen. Such a method of procedure should not be tolerated by the medical profession. Dr. Vining said that in his opinion premature babies were often lost because they were underfed, and pointed out that for such all the usual rules for the normal child as regards frequency of feeds had to be broken. He strongly condemned the haphazard method of feeding any child, and especially the premature baby, with over-diluted milk, pointing out that such a method must invariably lead to underfeeding. Finally, he referred to the importance of weaning as early as possible from the bottle, and getting the infant to take a well-mixed diet from a spoon, introducing raw egg, fish, and underdone meat by the time the child was a year old.

In the subsequent discussion Drs. BUTLER, CLARKE, DENNIS, RADCLIFFE, THOMAS, and WALKER took part.

YORKSHIRE BRANCH: ROTHERHAM DIVISION

A well-attended meeting of the Rotherham Division, preceded by a supper, was held in the Crown Hotel, Rotherham, on April 10th, when Dr. M. C. NAYLOR was in the chair.

Dr. A. R. ROCHE (Leeds) gave an address on "Some aspects of the certification question." He first dealt with the enormous increase in claims for sickness benefit since the war, and gave the meeting some startling figures, which had been compiled by the Government actuaries over the period 1921–27. He stated that the increase was greatest in married women, least in men, unmarried women taking an intermediate position; this increase was due to the larger number of claims, rather than to an increase in the duration of each claim. In 1929, of 410,000 cases referred to the regional medical officers, 50 per cent. were found to be fit for work on examination. Various local examination centres up and down the country had confirmed this figure. Dr. Roche exhorted the profession to exercise every case in granting certificates of incapacity, and also in giving the categorical diagnosis required by the friendly societies; to cover a vague diagnosis he reminded the members of the vague certification rule. Various instances of loose certification were quoted, and the speaker concluded with a plea that doctors should refer cases themselves to the regional medical officer when in doubt.

In the subsequent discussion Dr. CRERAR asked what constituted an "examination." Dr. SEDGWICK asked what steps had been taken to avoid vitiating the statistics given, as so many cases were on the point of "throwing off" when referred to the regional medical officer. Drs. HALLINAN and LISTER raised the question of granting national health insurance certificates to a patient under the treatment of a compensation doctor. In reply, Dr. ROCHE said that an "examination" must be sufficient to back up the facts and opinions stated on the certificate. He said that 10 per cent. had been allowed to adjust the figures to exclude the cases mentioned by Dr. Sedgwick. With regard to compensation cases, the granting of a national health insurance certificate signified the panel doctor's approval of, and consent to, the treatment by another doctor.

A successful meeting concluded with a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Roche for his address.

NATIONAL EYE SERVICE

NATIONAL OPHTHALMIC TREATMENT BOARD

Medical practitioners are reminded that there is now in existence a national scheme for the provision of ophthalmic examination and glasses, at low inclusive fees, available to the following classes of the community:

1. State-insured persons, whether or not they are entitled to ophthalmic benefit.
2. Dependants of insured persons.
3. Non-insured persons whose total family incomes do not exceed £250 a year.

All that is necessary for medical practitioners to do is to instruct those of their patients who, in their opinion, need skilled advice about their eyes, to call upon the local representative of the National Ophthalmic Treatment Board, by whom all arrangements will be made for examination and the supply of glasses if required.

Full particulars of the scheme and the addresses of these local representatives may be obtained from the general secretary of the National Ophthalmic Treatment Board, 1, High Street, Marylebone, W.

SUMMARY OF ACCOMMODATION

The following list of hotels, private hotels, boarding houses, and apartments, and their tariffs, has been prepared to assist members of the Association in making their choice. The terms are for one person per diem, unless otherwise stated; and in the case of licensed hotels, private hotels, and boarding houses the price includes bath. Application must be sent direct to the hotels, and not to the office of the Eastbourne Division. When applying for rooms, mention should be made of the Annual Meeting of the British Medical Association.

EARLY BOOKING ESSENTIAL

In order to avoid disappointment, it is imperative that booking should be made without further delay, and the Local Committee will be pleased to render any assistance if desired. If garage accommodation is required, members are asked to indicate this when booking rooms. The Honorary Local General Secretary of the Annual Meeting is Dr. P. W. Mathew, Avenue House, The Avenue, Eastbourne.

GENERAL COUNCIL OF
MEDICAL EDUCATION AND REGISTRATION.

SUMMER SESSION

The one hundred and thirty-third session of the General Medical Council opened at the Council's offices, Hallam Street, London, on Tuesday, June 2nd. Sir DONALD MACALISTER, Bt., K.C.B., occupied the chair.

Official notification was made of the appointment of Professor Sydney Alfred Smith as representative of the University of Edinburgh for the term of five years. He was introduced by Sir Norman Walker.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Sir DONALD MACALISTER then delivered his address from the chair. After referring with regret to the deaths of Professor Lorrain Smith, Dr. James Alexander Adams, and Professor David Hepburn, and congratulating Sir Ashley Watson Mackintosh on his appointment as a Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, he said:

The Privy Council has informed us that, in consequence of recent rearrangements with self-governing Dominions empowered to enter into independent agreements with other countries, it may be necessary to revise the terms under which, pursuant to the Medical Act, 1886, His Majesty in Council ensures to "the registered practitioners of the United Kingdom" reciprocal privileges of practising abroad. The matter is still under consideration, but it will probably involve the revision of the somewhat diverse conditions now governing medical reciprocity both with foreign countries and with the oversea portions of the British Empire. The Union of South Africa, and the Province of Manitoba, in particular, desire that modifications in the scope of the reciprocal privileges they offer to practitioners on our Register should be contemplated in this country. Correspondence on the subject is still proceeding.

In regard to Indian qualifications, I am able to report only that the Bill for the establishment of an All-India Medical Council, to supervise and guarantee the standards of medical education throughout that country, is still in process of drafting. It is not yet ready to be submitted to the Indian Legislature. Meanwhile, questions incidental to the general subject are calling for prompt consideration and solution, and suggest that the need for central legislation is not becoming less urgent.

At the end of this month the University of Leeds will celebrate the centenary of the local School of Medicine, which has now become its faculty, and it cordially invites the Council to share in the ceremony by appointing a delegate for the purpose. The Council in 1924 was represented by Sir Holburt Waring at the twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the University and the jubilee of its parent foundation, the Yorkshire College. It will doubtless desire to congratulate Leeds on the completion of a century of active and fruitful pursuit of medical education.

At the instance of the Government, a Poisons and Pharmacy Bill, which has passed the House of Lords, is now before the House of Commons. It gives effect, with certain amendments, to the recommendations of the recent Departmental Committee, of which I was a member, for the better regulation of the profession of pharmacy, and of the definition and classification of poisons by the aid of a statutory Advisory Board. On this Board, under the Secretary of State for Home Affairs, the General Medical Council, as the body concerned with the issue of the British Pharmacopoeia, is to nominate a member. I was invited, as your president, to attend at the Home Office a conference on the Bill between the authorities and representatives of the medical profession. Explanations were given and suggestions were considered on the scope and effect of the several clauses, as bearing on medicine, and I think I may say that when the conference rose its members were reassured that the proposed legislation was in the public interest, and free of risk to the efficient practice of medicine in any of its branches.

The Secretary of State has communicated to the Council certain proposed new regulations, amending those of 1928, concerning dangerous drugs, and exempting from their purview certain preparations containing one of these drugs in negligible proportions. This exemption will be for the convenience of the prescriber, without giving rise to any danger to his patients.

The Ministry of Health has called our attention to the revised Statutory Rules and Orders regarding the duties of medical practitioners in relation to cremation recently issued, with a view to their inclusion in the instruction given to students during the prescribed courses in forensic medicine and public health. As the Council in 1922 resolved that, from time to time, "Attention should be called to all Notices on these subjects," occasion was taken to send to the schools, for the use of teachers, copies of the revised Rules and Orders on cremation along with copies of the Council's Warning Notices.

At your request, in pursuance of the report of the Joint Education and Examination Committees, I wrote to the Minister of Health, calling attention to the desirability of making further accommodation available for the teaching of practical obstetrics to medical students. The Minister has sent a sympathetic reply, which I have referred to the Joint Committee. It will have a report to present to you on this subject, and on the place of preventive medicine in the medical curriculum, which has been under its consideration during the recess.

In 1922 the Council issued revised recommendations on the course of study and examinations to be required of candidates for degrees or licences in dentistry and dental surgery. These have been generally followed by the licensing bodies, but it appears that certain expressions in the recommendations are so ambiguous or ill-defined that widely varying interpretations have been put upon them. A need has thus arisen for greater uniformity of standard in reference to the requirements for dental qualification, particularly as regards such general subjects as anatomy, physiology, pathology, medicine, surgery, hospital practice, and the like. It is the duty of the Council, under Section 22 of the Dentists Act, 1878, to seek and to procure precise information "as to the course of study and examinations to be gone through to obtain" dental certificates and licences, "and any person or persons deputed for this purpose" by the Council "may attend and be present at any such examinations." The Dental Education and Examination Committee, which met last month to consider the question, report that, in its opinion, the time has come to make detailed inquiry into the working of the Council's recommendations, and that for this purpose the Council should now authorize the appointment of one or more deputy visitors of the dental examinations. Thus the Council would presently be in possession of the data necessary to decide the question of revising the dental curriculum, after ascertaining the views of the "medical authorities" concerned. The committee will present a report during the current session.

The Committee on Foreign and Colonial Students has brought into operation the method approved by the Council last November for dealing with applications from students from the United States for permission to pursue medical study in British schools. A regular interchange of evidence and certificates between the American authorities and the Council has been arranged, and the information forwarded from America has been singularly definite and helpful. It has enabled medical schools and licensing bodies to check and decide upon applications with full knowledge of the qualifications and eligibility of candidates for admission, and has been gratefully welcomed by deans and other authorities on this side. It has also contributed greatly to a better international understanding between the medical bodies in the two countries, and to the maintenance of the respective standards of medical education.

The Pharmacopoeia Committee has received an encouraging report on the progress made by the Pharmacopoeia Commission in the drafting of the new British Pharmacopoeia. The draft text is being printed, and proofs of a considerable portion have been received. But much remains to be done, and it is now doubtful whether the hoped-for issue of the new volume can be completed this year. Interim reports by subcommittees on various proposals for pharmaceutical and other changes have been published, for comment and criticism, with helpful results.

The accounts for 1930 have been duly audited and communicated to the Lord President. They show that the finances of the Council as a whole, in spite of heavy expenditure on the visitation and inspection of examinations, and on the preparation of the new Pharmacopoeia, are in a satisfactory condition, and the anticipated surplus has been restored.

The number of new practitioners added to the Register in the year has risen to 1,490, and the number of registered medical students to 1,792, these numbers being the highest for some years.

The Representative Body of the British Medical Association has forwarded an expression of its opinion that the time has come for the addition to the Council of a fifth representative of the registered medical practitioners in England and Wales, and the request that the Council should take appropriate steps to this end. Section 10 of the Medical Act, 1886, empowers the General Council to represent to the Privy Council " . . . that it is expedient to confer on the registered medical practitioners resident in any part of the United Kingdom the power of returning an additional member to the General Council." One such application was made in 1909, and was granted by the Privy Council in August of that year, and we are informed by counsel that this application does not exhaust the powers of the Council under Section 10 (c). The General Council must decide the question itself. Under Sections 6 and 9 of the Medical Act, 1858, it cannot delegate the application to the Branch Council for England or the Executive Committee. We shall have the opportunity during the present session of discussing the grounds for and against the proposed enlargement of the Council.

There is reason to hope that, in spite of certain disciplinary inquiries which call for your careful consideration, the session will not extend beyond the present week.

Correspondence

VACCINATION FEES

SIR,—Dr. Elder's letter in the Supplement of May 30th (p. 214), cannot be allowed to pass without support. Many public vaccinators, no doubt, hoped that when the county councils took over the duties of the guardians the much-needed revision in the scale of remuneration and conditions of service of these officials would be obtained.

It cannot be generally realized how inadequate is the public vaccinator's remuneration and how unpleasant are certain duties undertaken by him. Canvassing for work is justly condemned in the medical profession, yet, at regular intervals, the public vaccinator must send out notices (at his own expense) to the parents of unvaccinated babies, stating a day on which he will call on the baby and offer to vaccinate it. On the appointed day, when he duly makes his visit, he may get no reply to his knock, or may be met by a blunt and curt refusal, and sometimes even by abuse. For this modest service, which includes obtaining the lymph to follow up his offer, reporting the result of his visit to the vaccination officer, and sending the notice of visit to the parent, the public vaccinator receives the sum of 1s. 8d.!

For the sum of 2s. 6d. the public vaccinator must vaccinate anyone who applies to him at his surgery, inspect the result of vaccination a week later, fill in a large register, report the result to the Ministry of Health, and perhaps give a certificate. Further, if the patient requires any treatment as the result of the vaccination, not at all uncommon in an adult primary vaccination, such treatment must be provided without further charge. All this for 2s. 6d., but if the vaccination is unsuccessful no fee at all is payable to the vaccinator.

The principle of "no pay if no result," common to all vaccination contracts, is another stranger to the profession, and implies that it is the fault of the vaccinator if the result is unsuccessful. There are, of course, other factors over which the vaccinator has no control, which contribute to an unsuccessful vaccination—for example, insusceptibility to vaccination or revaccination, faulty lymph, or even the simple expedient adopted by the unwilling parent of rubbing soap over the vaccinated area directly the doctor is out of the house. In addition, the new rule of making only one puncture much reduces the chances of a successful result. It is easily possible for a public vaccinator to call no fewer than six times without receiving any remuneration, and often, after two unsuccessful attempts at vaccination, a parent will refuse to have her child vaccinated again.

For vaccinating successfully a child in its home, calling again in a week to inspect the result, and filling in the necessary documents and registers, another princely fee—namely, 5s.—is paid. All dressings, pads, etc., have to be supplied by the vaccinator, and all postages, except on certificates and requests for lymph, are also met by him.

There is also much room for improvement in the remuneration of the closely associated office of district medical officer, which has also been transferred to the county councils. The public vaccinators and district medical officers of each county should organize themselves into bodies to approach the county councils directly on these points, and if there are any in the county in which I reside in sympathy with this letter I shall be very pleased to hear from them.—I am, etc.,

A. DAVID BELILIOS.

"THE TWENTY-FOUR-INCH GAUGE."

SIR,—I trust that the admirable address of Lieut.-Colonel Harper-Nelson, published in the Supplement of May 30th, will be widely read. It embodies true religion, sound philosophy, and common sense. If I may be permitted to enlarge somewhat his section on prayer, I would say that, personally, I have a guiding prayer for daily use, which is, that everything I think, say, or do throughout the day may be to the honour and glory of God. How often I fall short in these respects, He alone knows. As a form of refreshment, I would strongly recommend those who possess a garden to work in it; by this I mean doing both the rough as well as the smooth—spade work at times, light work at others—as occasion arises. I have done this for the past eighteen months, and the benefits are enormous—sound physical and mental health, good appetite for food and tobacco, and restful sleep. When any medical work comes along, I undertake it with joy. For books, may I put in a word for Kingsley's Westward Ho! Dickens's Pickwick Papers and Dombey and Son, and, for poetry, Kipling's If—— ?—I am, etc.,

National Insurance

LONDON INSURANCE COMMITTEE

A meeting of the London Insurance Committee was held on May 28th, under the chairmanship of Sir THOMAS NEILL.

Medical Service Subcommittee Inquiries

The committee in February last decided to make representations to the Minister of Health that the continuance of a certain practitioner on the Medical List would be prejudicial to the efficiency of the service. The practitioner then expressed a desire to be permitted to withdraw from the list. The terms of service provide that if such representations have been made to the Minister the practitioner is not entitled without sanction to withdraw his name from the list pending the inquiry or the decision of the Minister upon it. The Ministry in this case was informed of the desire of the practitioner to withdraw his name from the list, and it was now reported to the committee that the Minister was prepared to consent thereto on an undertaking by the practitioner that he would not, without the previous consent of the Minister, engage in practice under the Act as principal, deputy, or assistant in any part of Great Britain or Northern Ireland. Mr. R. W. HARRIS, chairman of the Medical Service Subcommittee, said that ordinarily such withdrawal would not be countenanced, but there were circumstances in this case which made it the most convenient course.

Discussion arose on another case reported from the Medical Service Subcommittee. The case was one in which the complainant, an insured person, 72 years of age, had been accepted by the practitioner in 1913. In January last, while the patient was under treatment, the practitioner, it was alleged, informed him that he would not attend him in future, and that he should transfer himself to another doctor. Owing to the inability of the complainant to attend before the subcommittee it was not possible for the subcommittee to find on the facts, but it appeared from a letter by the practitioner that he was not well acquainted with the procedure which should be followed if he wished to discontinue the treatment of an insured person on his list. The Medical Service Subcommittee had caused the practitioner to be informed of the correct procedure—namely, to give notice to the Insurance Committee, the name being removed after fourteen days, or, if the patient was incapable of work and receiving treatment, to notify the committee of the incapacity, in which case the removal did not take effect (unless the patient in the meantime applied to and was accepted by another practitioner) until fourteen days after the date on which the practitioner notified the committee that the insured person was fit to resume work. One or two approved society representatives made strong protests against the action of the practitioner. Dr. CARDALE replied that the reason for removal of the patient from the list was because the practitioner's list was more than full, and, in reply to continuing protests from approved society representatives that an old man who had been on the practitioner's list for nearly twenty years, and was under treatment, should not have been chosen for transfer, Dr. CHASE, a member of the subcommittee, said that the insured person's son and daughter, whose names had also been included on the practitioner's list, had transferred themselves to another practitioner, and the respondent in this case thought it better that two insurance practitioners should not be visiting the same family. Mr. LESSER asked whether a similar course would have been taken by a practitioner in the case of his private patients.

HERTFORDSHIRE LOCAL MEDICAL AND PANEL COMMITTEE

The annual report of the Hertfordshire Local Medical and Panel Committee, which was presented at the annual meeting on June 2nd at Haileybury College, states that the number of insured persons in the county has increased from 123,535 in 1925 to 149,182 in 1931, and the number of insurance practitioners from 204 in the former to 250 in the latter year. A reduction of 25,000 in the number of prescriptions issued in 1930 is noted, as compared with the previous year, and the prescription frequency per patient was 3.44, as compared with 3.82, confirming the view that 1930 was exceptionally healthy.

The Hertfordshire Committee has completed its quota towards the National Defence Fund, and has set an excellent example by deciding that the voluntary levy shall remain unchanged, and that sums shall be devoted for medical charity from any surplus. A sum of £50 has been given on behalf of Hertfordshire insurance practitioners to the British Medical Association Charity Trust Fund for distribution among the recognized medical charities, and, in addition, £160 has been set aside as a Hertfordshire Medical Charity Fund to enable the committee to make grants to necessitous medical men (or their dependants) who have been engaged in work in the county.

During 1930 only two investigations were made by the Medical Service Subcommittee against practitioners. In one the complaint was irregular certification, and in the other a lack of attention was alleged, which allegation, however, was disproved. In its area the committee has twenty-three practitioners who are keeping special records of visits to, or attendances upon, insured persons, and the committee is paying them an honorarium.
